

Center for Middle East Studies Public Lecture

“How to Win a Cosmic War: God, Globalization, and the War on Terror”

Reza Aslan

Fellow at the University of Southern California's Center on Public Diplomacy and Middle East Analyst for CBS News

Wednesday, February 25, 2009

4:30 pm - 6:00 pm

Sam Noble Oklahoma Museum of Natural History

Robert S. Kerr Auditorium

Reza Aslan, an internationally acclaimed writer and scholar of religions, is a fellow at the University of Southern California's Center on Public Diplomacy and Middle East Analyst for CBS News. He is also a featured blogger for Anderson Cooper 360. Aslan's first book is the New York Times Bestselling, No god but God: The Origins, Evolution, and Future of Islam.

This lecture is co-sponsored by the International Programs Center, The Center for Middle East Studies, the Religious Studies Program, and through the generous support of the Farzaneh family.

This event is free and open to the public.

For accommodations on the basis of disability, contact Donna Cline at (405) 325-3581.