Conditions and Limitations of Participation in the Accelerated Degree Program

Now that you have been admitted to the ADP, you will be engaged, assessed, and graded as a graduate student, although you will remain an undergraduate student. You are not considered a graduate student with regard to funding opportunities, such as graduate assistantships.

You must meet all requirements and deadlines for the master's degree outlined in the Graduate College Bulletin, such as submitting a Program of Study and applying for graduation.

If you do not complete the bachelor's degree requirements, you will not be awarded the accelerated master's degree, regardless of the amount or quality of graduate work you have completed.

Eligibility for graduate admission:

- Before the final semester of your bachelor's degree, you will need to submit the online Addition or Change of Program form to apply for admission to the graduate portion of the ADP.
- You must meet the Graduate College admission criteria outlined in the Graduate College Bulletin to be eligible for admission to the graduate portion of the ADP. No exceptions will be made and conditional admission will not be permitted.

Grade point average (GPA) requirements:

- After admission to an accelerated degree program, you are required to maintain a 3.00 grade point average in each term.
- While you are in an accelerated degree code, the Graduate College will monitor your GPA each term over all coursework completed in that term. The undergraduate college may also monitor your overall GPA to ensure undergraduate degree requirements are met.
- A term GPA less than 3.00 will result in academic dismissal from the ADP. If you are dismissed from the ADP, you may apply to the stand-alone master's program upon completion of the bachelor's degree, but you may not share any coursework applied to the bachelor's degree (see the Graduate College Bulletin for rules concerning master's degree credit taken prior to admission to a graduate program).
